Tout sur l'emplacement

The house is located in Heempark De Braak, a park built in the late 1930s and inspired by biologist Dr. Jac. P. Thijssse. The park and the surrounding area offer a serene, green living environment with an unobstructed view of the park, which has been a national monument since 2011. This location offers plenty of privacy and is strategically located near both the center of Amstelveen and Amsterdam. In the immediate vicinity there are numerous sports fields, sports clubs, shops for daily groceries on the Amsterdamseweg, and various bars and restaurants in the old village. The A9 and A10 motorways can be reached within a few minutes, and Schiphol can be reached within fifteen minutes by public transport or by car. Primary and secondary schools are within walking and cycling distance, as is the international school Amity.
